

REPRODUCTIVE INSTITUTE OF SOUTH TEXAS

DR. ESTEBAN
ORTEGA BROWN

Dr. Esteban Ortega Brown loves working with patients one-on-one. "The gifted mentors I have worked with throughout my career taught me to look at each patient as unique," he says. "In my studies at Stanford, Baylor, the University of Texas Medical Branch-Galveston and the University of Pennsylvania, I worked with some of the finest and most caring doctors I know."

Since founding the Reproductive Institute of South Texas in 1992, Dr. Brown has devoted his career to helping couples who have difficulty getting pregnant. Located in McAllen, the Institute specializes in female infertility surgery and male infertility, in vitro fertilization and embryo transfer, insemination, assisted reproductive technology, surrogacy and sperm and egg donation.

"Infertility is technically, intellectually and emotionally challenging," Dr. Brown explains. "Patients are often in a vulnerable state, so we work with each couple individually. Developing a personalized plan for treatment and having a successful outcome makes it all worthwhile. That's why I love what I do."

USING CUTTING-EDGE TECHNOLOGY AND PERSONALIZED TREATMENT HELPS SOLVE FERTILITY PROBLEMS.

Dr. Brown's practice has helped hundreds of South Texas couples conceive and deliver healthy babies. "My staff and I believe in providing compassion and sensitivity along with the best medical treatment available," he says. "We're here to say 'there is hope.'"
